The Many Ways To Use Phantom Sense In Your Kinky Endeavors

What This Class Will Teach You

- A quick overview of what Phantom Sense is and how it generally works.
- Sight and Sound: The two senses that make Phantom Sense possible in VR.
- The basics on using sight and sound to play with Phantom Sense.
- Several examples of using Sight & Sound during various forms of kink play.

Phantom Sense: What Is It, And How It Do?

- Phantom Sense is a term that specifically refers to the phenomenon of a VR user experiencing perceived sensory input when there's no physical source for said sensory input.
- Phantom Sense is a form of self-hypnosis because your brain is tricking itself into experiencing something that isn't really there.
- Touch is typically the most common "sense" that one may experience when in VR.
  - One's sense of "touch" manifests in many forms, from a general "pins and needles" sensation to actual textures and even temperatures.
- Other more rare sense-based experiences involve smell and even taste.
- The ways in which people experience Phantom Sense is quite varied, though there are frequent overlaps in how people's Phantom Senses behave.

Sight and Sound: The Gateways to Phantom Sense

- Phantom Sense requires sensory input from one or both of the two existing senses that VR Users have access to - Sight and Hearing.
- If the VR User can see and/or hear something happening to their avatar, they may experience Phantom Sense in response to said perceived stimulus.
- Phantom Sense has many nuances to it that vary from person to person.
  - Some people need to see an effect happen directly to them to have a Phantom Sense reaction, while others simply need to have a stimulus implied for their brains to fill in the gaps.
  - Some VR Users require direct line of sight to experience Phantom Sense, while others don’t.
  - Some can experience Phantom Sense solely from having an action being verbally described to them.

Sight and Sound: Applicable in IRL AND VR!

The techniques that one can use in VR to trigger your play partner's Phantom Sense can ALSO be useful in real world kinky scenarios!

- All visual tricks of the trade apply to both VR and IRL kink scenarios.
  - You don't need trackers in order to convey your body language in real life, which is helpful. =3
- A blindfold can greatly enhance a scene as it eliminates your play partner's ability to see what you're going to do next.
  - Hearing and touch become much more pronounced when sight is taken away.
  - Blindfolds also force the wearer to use their imagination to anticipate what you're plotting.
- Sounds play just as much of a role in real world kink scenarios as in VR.
  - Playing with your play partner's expectations via sounds is just as effective as visually showing them what you're going to do.
  - The swishing of a flogger through the air, a whip cutting through the air at supersonic speeds, the stretching of leather gloves over a hand, etc.

Using Sight To Play With Phantom Sense

Several factors can play into the effectiveness of experiencing Phantom Sense using one's sense of sight.

- Choosing the right avatar and world to help set the mood right.
- Line of sight can be critical for some people. If it's out of sight, then it's out of mind for them.
  - This is not always the case, but it's rather common that line of sight is required.
  - Use of Personal Mirrors can help to get around this limitation.
- Slow and steady wins the race. If something moves too fast, the subject may not see what's happening.
- Use of body language to convey actions and intent.
- Use of avatar props and effects help to enhance one's Phantom Sense.

Using Sound To Play With Phantom Sense

Just as Sight plays a big role in Phantom Sense, the same goes with Sound, as well.

- Your voice is one of the most useful audio tools in your tool kit.
- Being descriptive of your actions can help the subject's mind "fill in the blanks."
- Varying your voice's tone, volume, and speed to control the mood.
- Play with your word choices! Variety is the spice of life.
- Use of avatar sound effects is extremely effective at triggering Phantom Sense when used appropriately.
- Use of real world props via sound foley work through your microphone can also enhance an experience.

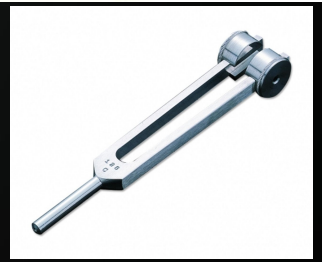
Examples of Using Sight & Sound During Kink Play

Sensation Play:

- Avatar props of all sorts can play into this form of kink play.
- Claws/finger nails are fun to have at-hand.
- Folding Fans can make for great auditory and sensory forms of stimulus.
- Feathers. Cuz they’re gentle and tickly.
- Tuning Forks - especially weighted ones!
- Your face (yes, your entire face is a tool)!
    - Lips, teeth, and tongue have their obvious uses in Sensation Play.
    - Your eyelashes can be used for giving “butterfly kisses.”
    - Simply rubbing your cheek across your play partner’s skin can be quite warm and intimate.
- Your hands (use your imagination).

Temperature Play:

- Water, fire, and wind! Oh my!
    - Avatar particle effects and world features can play a major role in creating various temperature sensations.
- Using your breath on your play partner.
    - Heavy breaths make warm sensations, meanwhile sharp inhalations create cooler sensations.



Examples of Using Sight & Sound During Kink Play

Impact Play:

- Clever use of sounds and props to clap that ass!
  - Smacking your own thigh at the same time you swat your play partner's ass can make for a really good live foley sounds.
  - Using real world kink toys make for natural live sound foley props.
  - Substituting other objects to make convincing sounds work just as well when playing in VR.
- Using your voice in place of sound effects.
  - When you lack real world props and tools, simply using your words and voice to emphasize the intensity of an impact can work just as well in a pinch.
- Selling the intensity of the impact through body language.
  - Winding up your swing, and putting your hips into the impact can really sell a heavy blow!

Knife/Sharps Play:

- Setting the mood with appearances.
  - Sharp and pointy knives/claws tend to get a certain kind of reaction from those with Phantom Sense.
- Enhancing the experience by removing sight but enhancing the sounds.
  - Blindfolds are fantastic! And if you don't have one, tell your play partner to close their eyes.
- Using real world metal objects to make interesting sounds.

Other Examples of Sight & Sound During Kink Play

Let’s discuss!!!

- What other kinds of uses of avatar effects, world features, and live foley effects have you used to enhance your kinky VR experiences?